DEBBIE NEILSON-HUNTER

The daughter of a British Royal Air Force photographer, Debbie's passion for travel was nurtured early on as a toddler roaming Cyprus' olive groves, then exploring the rest of western Europe in a pop-top campervan prior to emigrating to Australia. So it's hardly surprising she's made a 15-year career out of travelling the globe – albeit in 21st-century style. Her favourite travelling companions these days are her own two daughters.

I knew my children were Five Star Kids when they once chose smoked salmon instead of Coco Pops from the breakfast buffet.

I knew my child was a Five Star Kid when he packed his own designer suitcase, ready to head off.

KIRIANNA POOLE

Ex-flight attendant Kirianna and her pilot husband travel the world with their small son Riley, whose adventures are documented on Instagram as @rileys_travels. Kirianna relished her flying days because it was a unique way to see the world. "Working with different people from different backgrounds ... It opened my eyes as I became more connected," she says. Now she loves seeing the world through Riley's eyes.

SAMANTHA ROWNTREE

Our hardworking Digital Editor has been particularly busy working on our exciting new Five Star Kids website. Combining with our sister publication, Holidays with Kids, we will soon be Australia's number one multi-platform family travel network, making us the place to plan, research and book your luxury family holiday. Samantha loves to travel for the cultural experiences and has a soft spot for vibrant Turkey.

My favourite Five Star moment was when I discovered we had our own chef, butler, safari guide and more at the newly reopened and Beyond Phinda Homestead in South Africa. Seeing the Big 5 in the wild, even coming right up to our doorstep, was magical.
